FROM THE HEAD'S CHAIR

THIS WEEK

We have really settled into the routines and high expectations for all at STOKENCHURCH this week and have so much to share. I have enjoyed touring prospective parents around the school and am always astounded by the conduct of the children. The care, time and effort put into displaying and celebrating the children's outstanding work is quite something. Their confidence and conduct in giving 'delicious answers' when I ask them about their learning are a real advert for our school and I am constantly impressed by how they articulate their learning.

Well done children!

AMAZON WISHLIST

Thank you to everyone who has signed up and enabled these donations - we had our latest delivery this week and the resources go directly to the children where they need it. Thank you!

SINGING

Our singing practice continues and in our second session this week we started learning songs for our up-coming harvest celebrations. Thank you to Mrs Brand and our musicians who played for the school as they came into the hall. You were fantastic!

PRUNUS CLASS ASSEMBLY

This morning we were whisked back in time to hear all about Ernest Shackleton's voyage to the Antarctic. We heard about the journey and the conditions and how the crewmates onboard had to battle the elements in order to survive. It was history, geography and English all rolled into one and the addition of the song, with duets included, was a real treat. Well done Prunus class and thank you to Mrs Milne for putting it all together.

EYFS EXPERIENCES

Having just spent 30 minutes wheeling 40+ children around a roller-coaster track in the EYFS garden, I just wanted to share how much I wish I was 5 again! The learning, experiences, experimenting, team work, sharing and adventure is brilliant.....and I hope the photos capture just a small slice of what our children enjoy every day at school!

SCIENCE CLUB

Science club kicked off with a challenge for children to work together to create the tallest free-standing structure using nothing but spaghetti and marshmallows. Design, team work, patience and risk taking were all part of the activity and the greatest problem solvers managed to create a tower 62cm tall. Well done science club – I can't wait to see what you get up to next week!

BLACK HISTORY MONTH

For the month of October, STOKENCHURCH will be looking at influential people in black history, focusing particularly on people from the UK. We will begin each morning with a daily quote from some influential black figures, alongside introducing an influential/inspirational figure of the day, looking at people who have made and continue to make a difference to society. In music, the children will be listening to music through the ages, from a wide variety of black musicians from Louie Armstrong, Nina Simone, Bob Marley and Stormzy.

In class, teachers will prepare and access activities from a range of online resources to promote black history and achievement. In art, the children will be creating pieces to represent unity, researching art in a range of cultures, such as Ndebele and painting portraits of a range of influential people. Throughout October, we will be sharing our wonderful work on our class web pages.
